ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

At the very outset, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to Prof. Bhupen Sarmah, respected guide in the department of Political Science, Gauhati University and Director of Omeo Kumar Das Institute of Social Change and Development, an autonomous research institute of Indian Council of Social Science Research (ICSSR), New Delhi and Government of Assam, for the inspiration, guidance and supervision he has provided me throughout the course of this work. It was because of his inspiration and intellectual stimulation throughout the course that I was able to complete it. I am indebted to him for providing me immensely rich and thought provoking comments and indications. I shall remain ever grateful to his financial and psychological support towards me at the initial stage of my research work without support of which, it was simply not possible for me to continue my research work. The position, in which I am at present, is obviously because of him. It was quite impossible for me to express his unfailing support by a few words. I once again owe my deep sense of gratitude to him.

I acknowledge my sincere thanks to the Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR), New Delhi, for providing me financial assistance in the form of a Junior Research Fellowship (JRF) though I surrendered latter on when I was selected for a job in a provincialized college. Nevertheless, this fellowship helped me by and large to continue my research work without any difficulty. In this regard, I also acknowledge the regional office of the ICHR in the Gauhati University campus and its library.

I am extremely grateful to the Omeo Kumar Das Institute of Social Change and Development (OKDISCD) and its library staff for their motivation, help and cooperation in providing books, journals, magazines, newspapers etc. without whose help I could not have produced my research work.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my gratefulness to the department of Political Science, Gauhati University and my respected teachers for their support and motivation provided during my research period. Besides that I am also grateful to my college teachers Dr. Aparna Goswami madam and Kamal Thakuria sir. In this regard I also acknowledge the Gauhati University research library.
I express my sincere gratitude to Bishnoo Saud, Pabitra Das, Mantu Mali and Binod Choudhury for their help and co-operation during field survey. I am indebted to my friend Dibakar Das, Manjit Barthakur, Shyam Kr. Boro and Laksya Sarma for their help and encouragement. I also sincerely express my heartily thanks to those respondents who helped and assisted me in their area to collect primary data. I owe my deep sense of gratitude to my uncle Late Harendra Chandra Kalita who inspired and helped me a lot even financially at the starting point of my research work.

Last but not the least, I am grateful to my parents, Shri Subhash Ch. Kalita and Shrimati Sabitri Kalita for their advice to start my work and to inspire me to complete my research work. In this regard I also acknowledge the support and co-operation of my brother Saurav and sister Pinki.
