REFERENCES

development of Biofuels, Union Planning Commission, Government of India.

80. Pramanik K. (2003), ‘Properties and use of jatropha curcas oil and diesel fuel blends in compression ignition engine’, Renewable Energy, Vol. 28, No.2, pp. 239-248.

(2000), ‘Performance evolution of non-edible vegetable oils as substitute fuels in low heat rejection diesel engines’, ImechE Part D,

Vol. 60, No. 8, pp. 1557-1563.

‘Soybean oil fuel in a small diesel engine’, Trans. ASAE, Vol. 26,
No.2, pp. 333–342.

86. Pugazhvadivu M. and Jayachandran K. (2005), ‘Investigation on the performance and exhaust emissions of a diesel engine using preheated performance for biomethanation of non-edible oil cakes’, Energy,

88. Raheman H. and Phadate A.H. (2004), ‘Diesel engine emissions and performance from blends of karanja methyl ester and diesel’, Biomass and Bioenergy, Vol. 27, pp. 393-397.

89. Ramachandran S., Singh S.K., Larroche C., Soccal C.R. and Pandey A.
(2007), ‘Oil cake and their biotechnological applications – a review’,

95. SACRE (2006), President’s inaugural address, South Asian Congress on Renewable Energy, April 2006, New Delhi.

119. TERI (2004), ‘Livelihood improvement through biomass energy in rural areas (LIBERA)’, Report prepared for Swiss development and cooperation (SDC), The Energy and Resources Institute.

120. UPC (2003), Annual plan report of Union Planning Commission, Govt of India, New Delhi.

121. UPC (2005), Annual plan report of Union Planning Commission, Govt of India, New Delhi.

122. UPC (2007), Annual plan report of Union Planning Commission, Govt of India, New Delhi.

