PREFACE

Doctoral research work infuses among a sense of critical analysis to apply to real managerial situation; it gives an opportunity to apply conceptual, theoretical and imaginative skills to the real life situation and imaginative skills to the real life situation and to evaluate the results thereafter.

This research is going to define the insight of faculty, students and HR Executives’ perception, attitude and satisfaction towards the management education system in India. Also comparison among the different B-Schools in India gives an insight of how the various parameters affect the ranking of the B-Schools.

This is one of the few researches conducted on, students executives and faculty perception and understanding of the management system in India. This research would provide the guidance investigate the changes in management education which has happened and which would emerged in the time to come. It would also help the existing and also emerging business schools to run there courses as per expectations of the industry and the students who will have to compete in the future.

This research would also provide the inputs necessary to improve the management education system in India.